Crepe in Wall Street
Chicago's Big Bank
Kidder Peabody Advise
"Life Too Much for Me"

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1922, Star Co.)

If capable gentlemen of Wall Street expressed their feelings in words of suppressing them, there would be crepe on many doors and flags at half mast down there, because of Kidder Peabody's death.

Senator Penrose was chairman of the finance committee that controls Uncle Sam's money. Now McCumber of North Dakota is to be chairman and he will have something to say.

Penrose, powerful man, was chairman of the Wall Street "bloc," if which you hear little because it keeps its mouth shut, and finance business. McCumber, new finance chairman, belongs to the farmers' "bloc," of which you have heard a great deal.

If the farmers' "bloc" continues growing in power you know you may see serious changes in the country. You might even see railroads run partly for the benefit of the farmers, instead of seeing farmers run for the benefit of the railroads, as in the long past.

England says finance attaches little importance to the twenty million pound fund, planned to re-arrange Europe's finances. To undertake that task with less than one hundred million dollars, reminds you of the old lady trying to mop the ocean. George Reynolds' Continental and Commercial Bank in Chicago, second in size in the United States, has just digested a couple of other banks, now has five hundred million all to itself. Europe, having spent and squandered several hundred thousand millions on war, could hardly expect to fix that up with one-fifth the resources of one Chicago bank.

Kidder, Peabody of Boston, reaching out into New York finance on a big scale, have circulated excellent financial advice, "buy bonds and stocks of corporations not unduly expanded, having no floating debt." The trouble is the investing public doesn't know.

It should ask competent banking authority before investing. If it did that, many families would avoid ruin.

A young girl, daughter of a clergyman, struggling to make a living in a big city, gave it up, turned on six gas jets. Beside her dead body was found this: "Life is too much for me."

The wonder is that so many, especially young girls, are able to deal with life and conquer it at all. It is only the ingenuity of nature, giving us as a masterpiece the intense desire to live, that keeps us struggling and striving. How many, toward the end, can say that it really has been worth while? Yet we all hang on.

Forty taken to hospital in one day, suffering from alcoholic poisoning. Only five were women. There you have women's superior ability to get into a fix.

You will begin getting the answer before long in many places. There are deaths of fifty and sixty will begin dropping off, and their statistics slightly. Wood alcohol kills on the same day, or within a few days, as does whiskey kills, if you give it time.

Italy wants her share of the ocean cables taken from Germany. England and Japan have arranged to give us our share of the loot. If we are not too proud to take the property of a bankrupt nation we ought not to be too proud to take money that foreign nations owe us, or rather to ask for it. We probably won't get it.

The most respectable clergymen of the Methodist Church announce that in their opinion dancing and other things are wrong. The clergymen, including cards, are right. As people change and religion has changed in the past, it is likely that the things that most people do might say "dance by all means. It's better than wood alcohol."

The foreign trade of New York dropped three thousand million dollars in 1921, from a total of $900 million. If the canal connecting the Great Lakes and the Atlantic were in working order that probably would be blamed by shrewd New Yorkers. What ever helps part of the nation helps all the nation. Instead of opposing the canal New York should support it, for it will help the late region in connection with food prices, for food is retarding of food on a great scale, to give the consumer the benefit of big organization.

One 1922 visitor will be welcome and that is the President of bread weighing fourteen ounces. Its appearance is not frequent, but it has come forth here and there. "One extremely good piece of legislation in connection with food prices was forbidding retailers to buy by the big bag." What the country needs is retarding of food on a great scale, to give the consumer the benefit of big organization.

'BROWNIE' KENNEDY CASE TAKEN UP A PELLETER TRIAL

Police Believe Woburn Man Cut His Throat When Illness Prevented Marriage

James Coleman, special officer and messenger for the Merrimack Chemical Company of North Woburn, whose frozen body with throat and wrists cut, was found lying in a clump of bushes near the plant, killed himself because ill health prevented his marriage to Bertha Veno, the twenty-year-old telephone operator, to whom he was engaged.

This is the conclusion reached today by State Officers Barrett and Curran and Chief of Police Charles McCullough of Woburn, who have been at work on the case since the discovery of Coleman's mangled body yesterday.

Medical Examiner Stewart, after a careful investigation of the case today, reported to the police that the slashes on Coleman's wrists were, in his opinion, self-inflicted, and that the cut across the throat might have been.

PHLEBOMY MECH. The police also ascertained today that Coleman had been trying to break off his engagement to the girl without telling her that he had an incurable malady which would prevent their marriage.

On Christmas Day, it was learned by the Woburn officials today, Coleman had been found in a room at the hotel plant by another employee, Frank Mallon, pointing a heavy arm at his own head.

"Brownie" Kennedy, celebrated as the former manager of Mahanah Manor and promoter of gay revels for tired business men, figured in one of the cases used today against Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier in his trial before the Supreme Court.

'GIVE HEART'S BLOOD TO HELP COOL,' GUIDE VALERES

ATTACKS EVERY BLAUNTS

Montreal, Que., Jan. 4.—"Am on my way. Give my life-blood to help you win your case."

(Fred Blaunty wired this message to Mrs. Anna T. Sullivan being glad to aid in rounding up charges brought against himself and Mrs. Sullivan.)

"But Sullivan has given his mother a check for $1,000. This was made out to James (Blau) Sullivan and was signed 'James A. Sullivan.' It was dated December 24 and was Mr. Sullivan's Christmas gift to his son."

PRESENT FROM FATHER.

Before she left Grandville last night, Blaunty presented this check into his mother's hands and said: "Mother, I want you to use this. You'll find it father as I wanted to."

The check was used by Mrs. Sullivan to retain another Montreal lawyer to assist her present counsel, Gen. J. J. Sullivan, and to pay the fees of her case before Special Commissioner Eugene H. Goldin. K. C.

Heavily arrived at the home of Jean Creté, in Grandville, Quebec, on Monday, Jan. 2, to discuss with Major Creté as to the best way to make a quick "clean up" of the case.

It was decided that Creté and Blaunty would proceed by attack and deal with the case in the court which is due north, one hundred miles from Grandville, and on the "west" side, north "son" of the "witness" test.

"WORKING BEAUTIFULLY."

It will twenty below zero at five o'clock when Mrs. Sullivan turned out of her room at Jean Creté's house in Grandville. An hour and a half later she was in the trial court, where three of her Montreal, Que., were two women, a lawyer for each, three men, women and a policeman.

Today Mrs. Sullivan expects to announce the name of additional counsel. It is expected, also, that John B. Black, guardian of the baby girl, will arrive within the next four days to coach the Canadian lawyers on points of the testimony that will be presented.

Today he left Montreal, P. Q., for Boston, where he is working out beautifully. I hope I am called to the stand. I want to testify.

Primary proceedings in connection with the Sullivan case, which began the hearing of witnesses in Montreal, have been completed. The hearing is set for next week, January 11.

CRASH DAMAGES NORTH DAKOTA OFF CAPE COD

Aid Is Sent to Wreckage After Collision With Schooner

T. K. Bentley

The battleship North Dakota crashed into the schooner T. K. Bentley in a dense fog on the night of Jan. 3, causing damage to the schooner and the loss of the lives of the crew.

The Bentley, at last report, was being towed into port by the navy tug Quaker, which was rushed through the gale and waves to the aid of the schooner. The tug left the yard as soon as radio reports of the collision had reached the authorities.

For details of the accident are being, the reports from Captain M. E. French, commanding the North Dakota, having been made in the extreme, and naval officers refuse to make any comment until accurate data has been obtained.

All that is known here is that the North Dakota, left the Charlestown yard yesterday afternoon bound for the Atlantic fleet, now under way for Guantanamo Bay on the south coast of Cuba for the annual winter maneuvers and training.

Today a radio was received from her, stating that she had collided with the Bentley, but that no lives were lost.

Other dispatches reported that she was standing by the disabled schooner, being unable to tell whether the damage was serious or not.

Still later reports told of damage done to the battleship by the schooner, but that no lives were lost.

U.S. Perfect Girl' Tells Others to 'Park Corsets for Keeps'

Woman Who Exercises Properly Will Avoid Evils of 'Strapping Self In' College Athlete Says

The Sigma Nu Fraternity has put a ban upon the 'parking of corsets' at college parties.

Pauline Shaw, regarded as the most perfectly formed girl student at the College of Liberal Arts, Boston University, would 'park all corsets for keeps.'

The fraternity report, Walter E. Myers, denounces the custom of parking corsets at parties as 'strangely immoral.'

Miss Shaw declares that removal of corsets is no more immoral than the removal of a man's collar.

PUBICITY STUNT WITH

FOX LEADS TO ARREST

New York, Jan. 4.—Aren Kay, of the Hudson Bay food company, No. 808 Sixth avenue, identifying himself only "as the president of the firm," arrived at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street with his press agent and a small red fox in search of publicity. A crowd quickly gathered and the little fox was released. Twice efforts to get it to run were vain. A physical bystander picked it up and carried off, but Kay again got possession of it.

The little animal ran into the roadway, where it was struck by an automobile and one of its legs broken. The crowd now became so threatening that Kay hurried off with the fox. A few minutes later he was arrested, charged with cruelty.

IGNORES BOSTON GIRL IN PLEA OF DIVORCE

Court Grants Petition of Syracuse Manufacturer Against Wife

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 4.—In spite of the wife's charges making him with Miss Litch, Boston cabaret performer, Samuel Elman, wealthy Syracuse manufacturer, received his freedom today from Mrs. Besie E. Elman, when Justice Irving R. Devender confirmed the report of referee Frank B. Hodges and signed an interlocutory decree of divorce in favor of the manufacturer.

The decree awarded to Elman the custody of Miss Mildred Elman, 17, a student in Central High School, who lives with her mother here.

Strenuous objections were made to continuation of the report of the referee, finding Mrs. Elman guilty of misconduct, by her counsel, Mr. Herlinger three weeks ago.

Mrs. Elman is making preparations to appeal to the Appellate Division at Rochester in an effort to gain a reversal.

eriment witnesses, are friends of Loud and are expected to be hostile to the government. Women also play a big part in the government's case. Women, too, will be a feature in the defense.

Will the evidence of a woman save Clarence W. Loud? Or will a woman's story send him to the chair?

JURY AT DEATH SCENE

The jury today was taken over the course which the state will charge that Loud took the night of the murder. The jury also were taken to Loud's home. Loud was left in East Cambridge jail during the jury's trip.

Reports about the courthouse today were that Mrs. Kate Bow would be called as a witness for the state early in the trial. She was a prominent figure in the investigation of the murder.

Previous to the departure of the jury on its trip, District Attorney Saltonstall made a brief opening to the jury, telling what would be shown them and emphasizing some of the most important things they would see.

Now on a view by the jury, gentlemen, neither side is allowed to tell you anything. We are going to point out various objects to you and the reason therefore will be explained to you later on in court.

The charge over which we will take you has been mentioned so often and so generally by the press that the important places of the course have been mentioned in detail.

Round numbers that course from point 12 is approximately six miles and four miles to the city center. As we go over this route, Sheriff John R. Fairbank turned over his personal car to some of the newspapermen who are covering it.

The first jury stopped at Loud's home, No. 51 Stratford road, Melrose. The jury entered the house by the back door and remained but a few minutes. The jury then went to the back door and remained but a few minutes.

While they were there Mrs. Loud told Judge Mahalanobis, chairman of the court for her husband, a box of dainties to be given him at the Central Cambridge Jail.

After inspecting Loud's garage, the jury went to Linden road where, at a spot about seventy-five yards from Loud's home, District Attorney Saltonstall pointed out several locations.

The next stop was at Crystal Pond, Melrose, about two and one-half miles from the Loud home. "I want to call your attention to that factory in the distance," in 1914," Attorney Fenney, senior counsel for Loud, said to the jury.

The spot where they were standing looked down on the railroad tracks which skirt the pond. It was along these tracks that Loud told the police he walked after he had been held up in his auto.

From there the party went to the Melrose police station, where it was shown the room where Fenney was taken after he was discovered in the road. The spot where he was discovered was next viewed.

lie had more to do in reaching her home, more than an hour after he was expected, and had thereupon started crying himself.

She refused to say whether there was anything back of their tears except Coleman's fatality.

In clearing up the mystery surrounding the discovery of the body, the police declare they have been able to explain the "disappearance" of the $400 which Coleman showed Miss Veno as the money with which he had intended purchasing the turnkey for their home.

COURT AT FIFTEEN.

That money, it was said, did not come from Coleman, but was obtained by him in cashing checks for the firm of the Coleman company. He had turned it over to its owners, after showing it to Miss Veno.

In support of their theory that Coleman killed himself, the police said that on New Year's Day Mrs. Harland Veno, a sister of Miss Veno, had sent a letter to Coleman with a message for the messenger to come down to her.

Coleman had gone and was upbraided for his attempt to break the engagement with Bertha, but refused to explain except to declare that they would "understand it all soon."

Bertha Veno is twenty and pretty. Coleman, forty-five years old, had begun courting the girl five years ago. When he was fifteen, a group of men standing about a farm on the front ground.

DOUBLE-HEADER CAR TIPS OVER; MANY HURT

Cleveland, Jan. 4.—The rear end of a double-header intervention, headed toward Akron on the Akron, Bedford & Cleveland line, tipped over today, injuring more than a score of passengers, several seriously.

The boat did not annoy the Boston officials, found no conclusion in the following newspaper reference to an article of the day's inaugural ceremonies: "On behalf of the 12th district, Mayor Edward J. Kelly presented to the Mayor a gavel, made of a Buffalo horn, which he said was emblematic of Buffalo and also was emblematic of the city, because it has a solid ivory head."

Mayor Kelly, the old-time idol of the Buffalo 100-foot Sox fans, and the greatest third baseman in baseball history, the hour before train time for Cleveland with the Boston party.

He delighted them with stories of fun and games and events and with some significance said Boston should be so effected to lose the reputation of being the square and the best baseball city in the country.

He is quoted as saying: "Buffalo real estate business and in one of the state's besting jobs. Today we compress the Cleveland lighting plants will be inspected and the municipal and private agencies compared."

Word has been received that June A. Watson, president of the Boston (C.C.) Council, that the Mayor of Columbus is awaiting an official revision for the party.

BUFFALO PLANTS SEEN BY HUB COMMITTEE

City Councilors Hear About Lighting System and Speng Hour With Jimmy Collins

Cleveland, Jan. 4.—The special committee from Boston investigating lighting plants consisting of six councilors and the Commission of Public Works arrived in Buffalo this morning.

The first thing the committee did was to visit the Buffalo General Electric Company having a monopoly of the business, but there are no coal clauses and no interest charge on the consumers' bills.

About one-half of the current is bought by the Buffalo company from the General Electric Plant at Niagara Falls and the rest is supplied to the company's 50,000 horsepower steam plant in Buffalo.

For the first 30 kilowatt hours the price is eight cents and all after that is four cents and all after that one and one-half cents. Buffalo has natural gas and for lighting purposes illuminating oils are added but the result is not especially superior.

The Buffalo plan of assessing property was studied with interest by the Boston party after the lighting problem had been discussed. A survey administration was indicated also of the city. The Mayor says his particular goal is 1,000,000 people for Buffalo. It is the largest city in population now, Boston is seven seventh place, but Mayor Schwab declares Buffalo will run ahead of Boston when the next Federal census is taken.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens so Naturally Nobody can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is greater than ever, and folk are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite possible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is one of the greatest advantages.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the money minting at home. All you get from the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Sage Tea and Sulphur Compound," it is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one row at a time, by morning and night, until with "Sage Tea and Sulphur Compound" the hair is darkened to a deep brown, and the appearance of youthfulness is so attractive—advertisements.

CLEARING the Atmosphere a Reality! A new addition to scientific development and the betterment of the health of the general public is a machine recently invented, which will clear the air of fog, smoke or any foreign substance. The foggy or smoke-laden air is drawn through the tube on the left by the powerful magnet cones on the right and in the process is clarified. It was invented by the Medical Supply Association of Great Britain. Note the operator smoking. As fast as he puffs the device draws the smoke away. (Wide World.)
